Hi Mike, your battery light comes on because the computer has detected an issue with the battery or the charging system, the engine light indicates a fault code has been generated in order to check out any main system electrical circuit, you have to start with a fully charged battery 12.5 volts or better, and be able to pass a load test if necessary.

Check engine light comes back on for about 5 seconds after the engine starts and then goes out. I never worry about it, just keep riding until it resets. Whether it's riding or ignition cycles I don't know, but I'm not about to sit there and turn my ignition on and off 50 times in a row just to make the light go out.

I put about 150 miles on it and then pulled the fairing off to replace the stock mirrors with fairing mounted typeand now the "check engine light" and charging light both light up about a minute after starting the bike. The bike had the stock battery from 2007 in it which I replaced with a new one. Problem still exists.

I have a 2 year old Seadoo Sportster. Took it out for the first time last weekend after putting a new battery in and ran it pretty hard for about 15mins at which point the Check Engine Light came on. I idled into dock, shut it down, ran my engine compartment blower and let it sit for about 20-30mins and went out again. Something. I am at a loss since this unit only has about 25 hours on it.

The check engine light did not come on but I had to operate the throttle pushing the grip towards the center of the bike for 37 miles. I am really hoping that I can solve this, what seems like an electrical nightmare, rather than taking it to a mechanic. Biffy08, Jul 31, 2012 #5.
