In physics, a force is any interaction that, when unopposed, will change the motion of an object. A force can cause an object with mass to change its velocity (which includes to begin moving from a state of rest), i.e., to accelerate. Force can also be described intuitively as a push or a pull. A force has both magnitude and direction, making it a vector quantity.

A force always causes the centripetal acceleration as for a satellite, it is the force of gravity. For a swing-ball, it is the tension in the string. For a moving car around a car, it is the frictional force between the car and the road.

The sheet curves around the bowling ball, and according to GR, this curvature is gravity. A smaller object like a golf ball placed on the sheet will naturally fall towards the larger object, and if you give the golf ball a little push, it will circle the bowling ball just like a planet orbiting a star (friction eventually causes the golf ball ...

An easy way to remember this is the old ESPN advert: "Roll the ball, then answer the phone." Though, hopefully you have better form than the guy in that commercial. And remember, fluidity here is essential: don't do the hand-shake, pause slightly, and then do the follow through -- it must all be one smooth motion.
